

- This should be the landing page for the website
- The Browse, Genres and Format and whatever Blockbeats logo is should remain on every page
- The left and right buttons should shift through the clips and disappear when either left or right end is reached
- The clip name appears at the top
- Possibly the picture/whatever associate with each clip could have like a hover to play a few seconds of the clip
- The price should be in whatever format we're going to use, whether we convert it to dollars etc.
- Look at the next screen to see what the menu bar should look like (i.e. create button added)

- This should pop up over the screen in front, the listing should still appear behind and if they click the background, it should take them back to the screen above with whatever location on that screen they were just on
- The Left and Right should take them to the previous/next song in the list
- If possible, play the video or whatever associated with the song/or the WAV file video in the box – so they can sample what they buy
- Buy license should allow them to use Metamask to buy the license
- Licensing History should show the users who have brought the license, should pop downwards and then if really long have a scroll bar (just like a simple list of user, data purchased, how much they purchased it for, or any other relevant details too).
- Create should look slightly different to show it's a different activity to browsing/purchasing
- User button (Can make any icon that shows a user profile – I don't know if metamask has usernames/profile pics that might be good to add alongside it) should take them to an account where they can view their licenses and listings they've created.
- There should be some indication of duration
- Could swap the wav/video to description text

The image displays two screenshots of a web application interface for 'blockbeats'. Both screenshots show a top navigation bar with 'CREATE', 'BROWSE', 'GENRES', 'FORMAT', and a search bar. Below the navigation is a sidebar with a purple gradient background. The main content area shows account history for a user named 'username/metamask account'.

Screenshot 1 (Top): This screenshot shows a collapsed 'Your Creations' dropdown menu. The menu is open in a separate window, displaying four items:

Upload Name	Date	Size	Type
Upload Name	1/10/2022 13:41	2000000	URI
Upload Name	1/10/2022 13:41	2000000	URI
Upload Name	1/10/2022 13:41	2000000	URI
Upload Name	1/10/2022 13:41	2000000	URI

Screenshot 2 (Bottom): This screenshot shows the 'Your Creations' dropdown menu fully expanded, displaying the same four items as in Screenshot 1. Below it, a 'Your Licenses' dropdown menu is shown, which is currently closed.

- Should be a scroll bar if there are more creations or licenses than there is space to display
- Only one should be open at a time
- The cover art can appear in the list to the left
- Licenses should look the same as the uploads but list the licenses they have bought
- The button with < downwards should change depending on if its dropped down or not

- Screen row should continue on (i.e. need to scroll down to see more)
- Should have a next page (like Google) are 30ish entries depending on size
- When hovering over it, it should appear clickable (i.e. it raises up compared to the other results)
- Should have duration on the cover art in the corner
- Should probably add upload time to the result as well

- Obviously the filter needs to look better than the drawing (but its kind of like the drag ones where you can set the max and min price within the range of prices)
- Duration should be the same, for the length of the sound
- I think there are probably more filters that need to be added, can't think of them at the moment but they could be related to video/non-video or which format they are in.
- Probably newest to oldest listing upload should be in filters
- Popularity could be a big one too

- These were ones I found on sample selling sights that people wanted to search for
- Genre should just have a dropdown in the same format but instead show a list of music genres
- One website had format, but I actually think it might not be too important so we could remove it and just have BROWSE and GENRE

- Needs tags to make browsing easier
- Once Upload Sample and everything that is compulsory to fill in has been done, extend the bottom of the screen and add a button saying 'Publish Listing'
- Some of these should be optional (no title or price though)